では始めましょう。

I am Robert Smith. I came from Australia three years ago and started my new life in Kyoto. I studied Japanese there for the first two years to understand Japan well. Then I became an English teacher at a junior high school here in Okayama. Today I am going to talk about a party in Japan.

I had a party at my house with my friends and my students. I invited eight friends from Australia and seven Japanese students. I said to my students, "The party will start at twelve on Saturday. Will you come and enjoy the party?" Then my students said, "Yes, of course. Thank you for inviting us, Mr. Smith."

Then the day came. It was eleven thirty on Saturday and my students came. I said to them, "Hi, everyone! Please come in. This is the room for our party. I have a lot of things to do here for the party now. Will you go to that room and wait there?" At twelve I went to the room and said, "OK! You can come in. Let's enjoy the party." A few minutes later, my friends came too. We started our party. But my students sat down together at a table and spoke Japanese because they could not speak English well. One of my friends said to them, "Why don't you come and talk with us? I always enjoy talking with new friends at a party." My friend showed pictures of his family to the Japanese students. They were interested in the pictures and asked some questions in English. Soon my friends and my students understood each other a little. Then they sang Japanese songs and English songs. All the people enjoyed the party and became friends.

So I think my students learned an important thing: they should talk with new friends at a party.

Thank you for listening.
